

Nova Scotia

2 more Ontario men charged with trafficking and exploiting Nova Scotia women

Both men arrested in recent days in Nova Scotia as part of national investigation

CBC News · Posted: Aug 28, 2017 1:54 PM AT | Last Updated: August 29, 2017

Nova Scotia RCMP have charged two more Ontario men in an 18-month national human trafficking investigation. The latest charges follow the arrest of a 31-year-old man in May.

On Friday, RCMP arrested a 31-year-old Vaughan, Ont., man in Onslow, N.S. Two days later, officers arrested a 29-year-old Scarborough, Ont., man in Dartmouth, N.S.

"Human trafficking is definitely a concern for the RCMP, however we can only act on information that we receive and in this particular case we had information and we were able to launch this investigation," said RCMP Supt. Alfredo Bangloy.

Both men face a slew of charges. They include:

- Trafficking in persons.
- Receiving a material benefit from sexual services.
- Receiving a material benefit from trafficking in persons.
- Laundering proceeds of crime.

The second man is also charged with possession of the drug Percocet. Both ©2019 CBC/Radio-Canada. All rights reserved.

Visitez Radio-Canada.ca